Kyle McDonald, DO, joins MSU HealthTeam as one of its newest physicians. After earning his medical degree at Michigan State University’s College of Osteopathic Medicine, he then completed his residency in Osteopathic Neuromusculoskeletal Medicine with Mercy Health Partners in Muskegon, MI.

McDonald has conducted extensive research into the study of leg length inequality and laterality of low back pain, which earned Institutional Review Board approval in 2018. He has also worked to educate medical students and residents in osteopathic principles and practices as well as osteopathic manipulative medicine with MSU’s College of Osteopathic Medicine.

McDonald joins our multispecialty group as a physician. He is adding to our complement of 225 providers performing cutting-edge research, teaching medical and nursing students, and providing exceptional care to the Greater Lansing and Grand Rapids communities.
